Symposium Launch

Climate Justice and International Environmental Law: Rethinking the North–South Divide

The Melbourne Journal of International Law warmly invites you to join us to launch 2009 edition 10(2). This edition proudly features a symposium on ‘Climate Justice and International Environmental Law: Rethinking the North–South Divide’.

Climate change poses the most pertinent obstacle to the discourse of international law and, more importantly, our global livelihoods. Our collection of think pieces, articles, commentaries and reviews explores the intersection between law and emerging ideas of climate justice, and how this affects our understandings of the North–South divide.

When: Tuesday 1 December 2009, 5.30pm – 7.30pm
Where: Melbourne Law School, Room 920
Drinks and finger food provided
Register: law-mjil@unimelb.edu.au by 26 November 2009